Most tablet and computer users will see fairly similar screens when they begin reading The Observer Online digital edition. Smartphone users may not see the same options on their devices, so they may need to explore a little to determine the easiest way for them to read the paper.

Here's How Subscribers Can Read The Observer Online Digital Edition

1 You can start by going to <http://observer.rockforddiocese.org/> on your computer or mobile device. Look for this logo on the left hand side and click on it. That will take you to the log-in page.

2 Type in the email address you provided to us when you subscribed and enter a password you'll remember. When you have entered your password, the top of the screen will change and you'll see "View Your Current SUBSCRIPTION."

3 Click on the arrow to the right of "View Your Current SUBSCRIPTION." The next page you'll see will be the front page of the current edition of The Observer.

4 Click on the arrow at the edge of the screen to flip to the next page of the paper. Next time, we'll explore the tools to help you navigate.

Get email alerts. Click enOTIFY and fill out the form that pops up if you want an email alert when the latest edition is available online.

DIOCESE OF ROCKFORD—The second combined collection of 2013 will be taken up the weekend of March 9-10 in parishes across the diocese. The International Appeal supports the Universal Catholic Church through individual appeals, including the Peter's Pence Collection that will enable the newly elected Holy Father to carry out his most important charitable works. The pope receives requests to help some of the most traumatized peoples of the world including victims of war, of oppression and of various disasters, and this collection will allow him to respond. Last year, the people of this diocese contributed $164,601 to this collection.

Pope Francis Pledges to Protect Church, Human Dignity

BY GUYTON WOODEN
 Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY — Pope Francis Sunday pledged to protect the church and human dignity, saying he will not tolerate any form of abuse or mistreatment, including sexual abuse.

"While the world would like to see him as a man of peace and love, he is a man of strength and courage," said the pope in a message to the faithful on the first day of his pontificate, which is the start of the "Year of Faith."

"The church must be a place of peace and love, but it must also be a place of strength and courage," he said. "We must not be afraid to stand up for the truth and for the dignity of every human person."

Here's How to Look at Past Issues of The Observer Online Digital Edition

Read old editions two ways. If you search the archives, you'll get a version that will pop up as a vertical "string" of pages. When you find old editions through the calendar, you'll have the same horizontal view as you find in the current issue.

Toggle view. In the archived editions, you'll get a new dark gray toolbar. The key new icon is the Toggle Slider which opens a visual table of contents (left).

Click on the calendar icon. An interactive calendar will pop up. You can click on any highlighted date to look at that edition. Use the left and right arrows to switch months. When the edition opens, you'll still have the light gray toolbar you started with for navigation.

Two views. Clicking the "window" in the table of contents view gives you thumbnail images of the pages. The "stripes" give you a numerical list of pages.
