Socially distanced theater: ACC students stage virtual ‘Sleepy Hollow’

AURORA—Aurora Central Catholic High School’s first virtual drama production was planned for Nov. 13-14.

Phil Nohl, drama instructor and play director, said ACC thespians were to perform an online radio version of Washington Irving’s “Edgar Allan Poe’s ‘Sleepy Hollow,’” which combines Irving’s tale with Poe short stories and poems

The free production was accessible from links provided at the ACC website, auroracentral.com.

Nohl said, “In COVID times we had to be creative.” Actors had their own microphones and were seated apart from each other. The sound design was created by drama tech class students led by the drama production students.

To make up for lost ticket revenue, the ACC Drama department welcomes donations at <https://bngn.smarttuition.com/?id=f2aenxsiwgc>. The goal is $2,000.
